

CanSupport in India

CanSupport, a New Delhi-based nonprofit organization, helps people with advanced cancer and their families to make informed choices about treatment and provides them emotional support and counseling, including bereavement care.

Its home care teams aid those with terminal cancer. Patients are referred to CanSupport by the Institute Rotary Cancer Hospital at AIIMS, Dharamshila Cancer Institute and other hospitals. The home care team offers medical and nursing care and practical advice to family members. CanSupport's day care program allows patients with a good prognosis to come to a center, usually accompanied by family members. There they spend time with volunteers, enjoy massages, aromatherapy and other forms of alternative healing.

On the first Wednesday of every month, cancer patients and survivors drop in for an interactive session where they share their experiences and feelings.
